

A Geographic Profile of Western Presenters

Winter, 2004 Snapshot

This document maps the numbers, density and geographic distribution of presenters in the western region, and clearly indicates the unique and significant topographical and distance challenges posed to those involved in western touring and presenting. A presenter is an organization that contracts with the performing artist to present the artist's work to the public. The presenter provides the space, and local technical and house support, advertises, promotes the event to the community, and pays the artist a fee. Besides the public performance, residency activities in the host community may include K-12 presentations, workshops, master classes, etc. Presenters represented on the following pages range from large nonprofit or university presenters to small, rural and all-volunteer organizations, to libraries and festivals that present live performing arts. Using presenters' five-digit zip codes, the presenters within each county in each state were mapped. These visual displays are intended as a springboard for discussion of topics including:

- The challenges and realities posed by touring and presenting in the western region,
- The relationship of touring and presenting in the western region to that of the rest of the US,
- The critical (and sometimes unique) role presenters play in broadly providing arts opportunities to a wide variety of communities in each western state,
- The roles western state arts agencies and other entities can play (individually and jointly) in developing the field of touring and presenting, and
- The types of additional data that would inform future policy discussions.

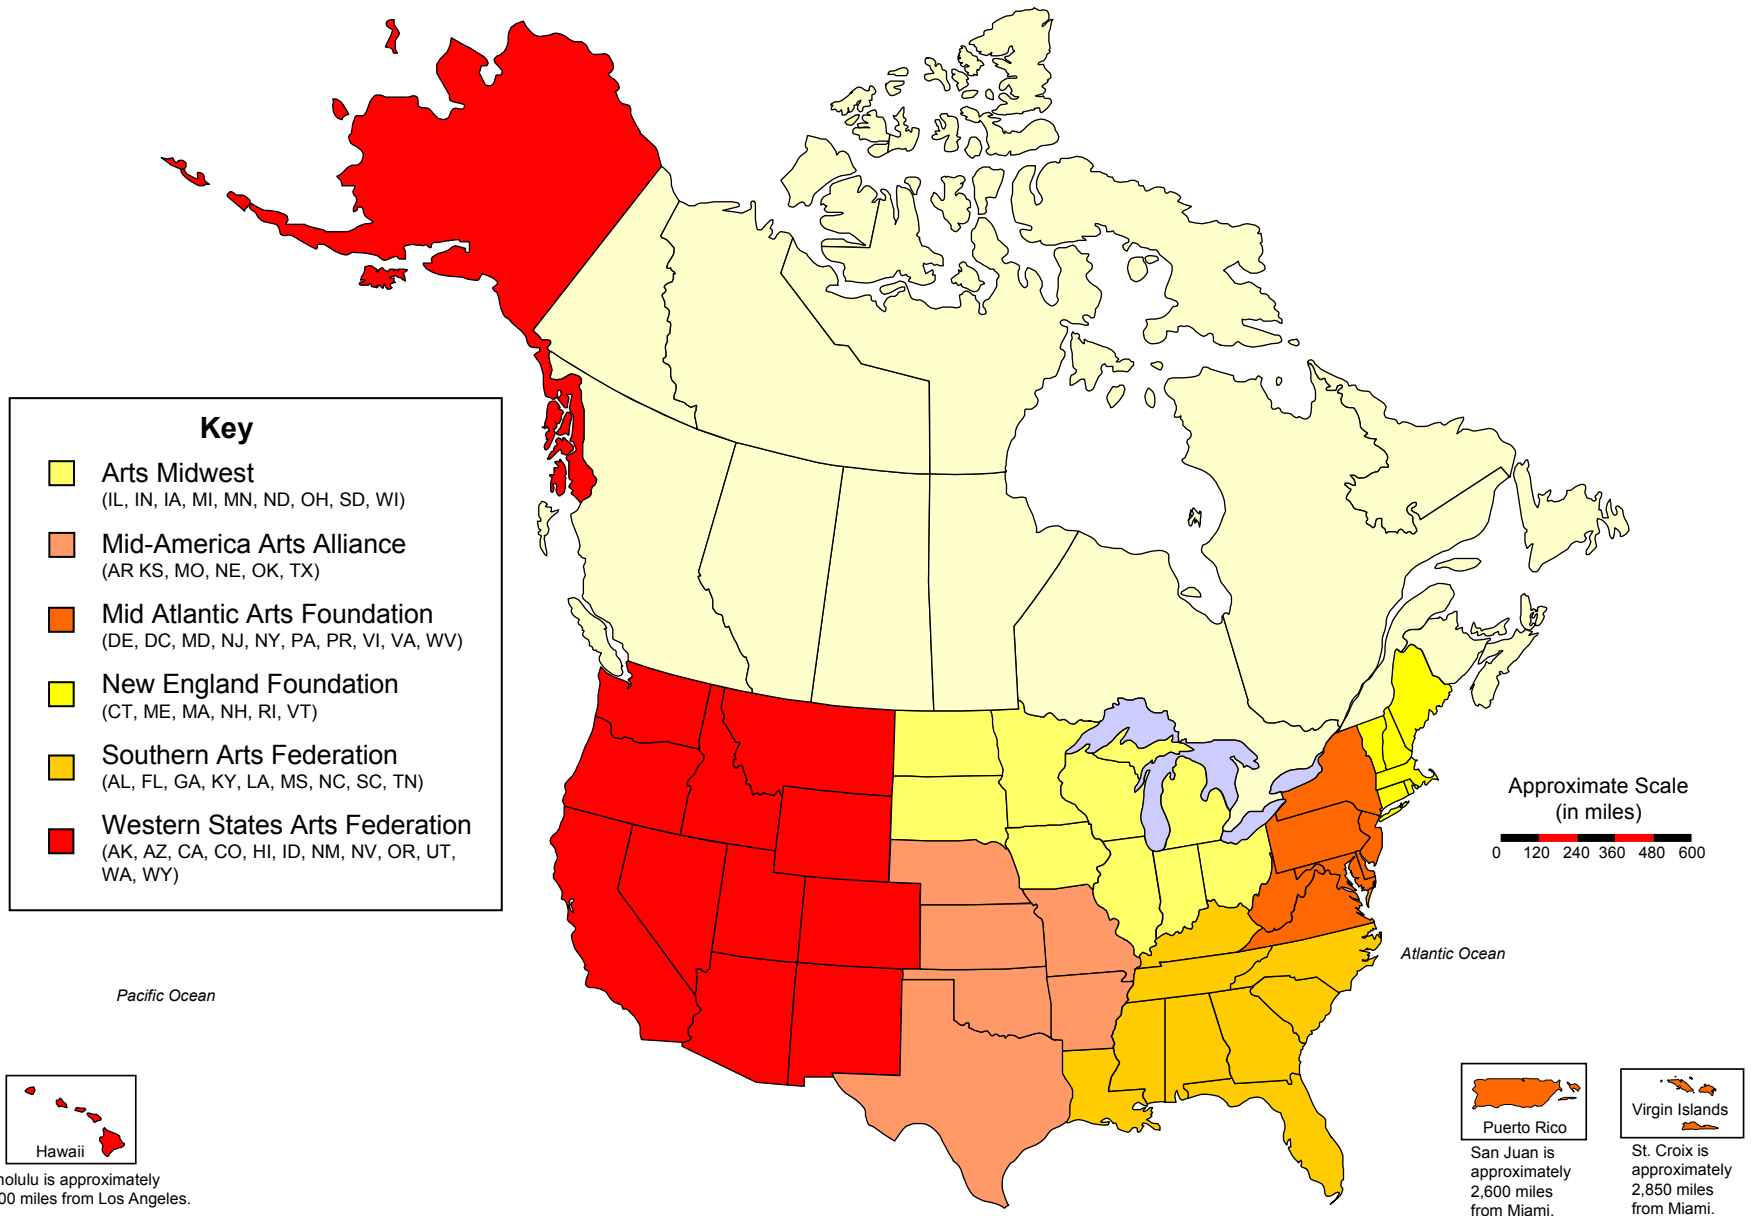

For additional information on this project, please contact Patricia Milich, Program Manager, Performing Arts Touring and Presenting Program, California Arts Council (pmilich@caartscouncil.com or 916/322-6385) who acted as coordinator of data collection and conduit between the western state arts agencies, presenter consortia representatives, and touring and presenting arts service organizations who provided data, suggestions and insights. Their many contributions were invaluable in creating this 2004 snapshot. A 2003 document, Critical Needs of Performing Arts Touring and Presenting in the West: The Link to Access and Excellence, may be a helpful companion document; it may be accessed at the California Arts Council website, http://www.cac.ca.gov/programs/program_patp.cfm.
